"The Nature of Code" is a wonderful book on interactive visualization for simulations of natural systems, by Daniel Shiffman.

You can read the entire book online for free at https://lnkd.in/dRB_PRkP.

He also has got a YouTube channel with a tutorial series on the exercises given in the book at https://lnkd.in/dmgCQjE7 .

Highly Recommended!!

He has used p5.js (Processing in JavaScript), but myself being more familiar with python, I have used pyp5 (https://github.com/p5py/p5) for implementing the exercises.

My implementations are at: https://lnkd.in/dYr8iizV

Origin of this effort is in The Processing Foundation (https://lnkd.in/dGt5S95K) whose mission is to promote software literacy within the visual arts, and visual literacy within technology-related fields — and to make these fields accessible to diverse communities.
